

Kenwood Dealer Group School of Automotive Technologies at Cincinnati State service industry as a brake, suspension, steering, and alignment technician.

For more information, please contact the Business Technologies Division at (513) 569-1620.

The Kenwood Dealer Group School of Automotive Service Technologies at Cincinnati State provides opportunities for students interested in careers in the field of automotive technologies.

The Kenwood Dealer Group (<https://www.cincinnati.edu/auto/>) provides resources for the automotive technologies degree and certificate programs and scholarships for students.

The department offers one Associate of Applied Business degree program:

- The Automotive Service Management (ASM) (<https://catalog.cincinnati.edu/archives/2024-2025/academicdivisionsanddegreeandcertificateprograms/businessesstechnologiesdivision/automotive/asm/>) program includes co-op education at local automotive service companies as well as classroom instruction.

The department also offers five certificates:

- The Automotive Service Technician Certificate (ASTC) (<https://catalog.cincinnati.edu/archives/2024-2025/academicdivisionsanddegreeandcertificateprograms/businessesstechnologiesdivision/automotive/asm/>) prepares students for entry-level jobs in the technical area of automotive service field.
- The Automotive Engine Repair Technician Certificate (AERTC) (<https://catalog.cincinnati.edu/archives/2024-2025/academicdivisionsanddegreeandcertificateprograms/businessesstechnologiesdivision/automotive/aertc/>) prepares students for starting or advancing their career in the automotive service industry as an engine repair technician.
- The Automotive Heating and Air Conditioning Technician Certificate (AHATC) (<https://catalog.cincinnati.edu/archives/2024-2025/academicdivisionsanddegreeandcertificateprograms/businessesstechnologiesdivision/automotive/ahatc/>) prepares students for starting or advancing their career as a heating and air conditioning expert.
- The Automotive Powertrain Technician Certificate (APTC) (<https://catalog.cincinnati.edu/archives/2024-2025/academicdivisionsanddegreeandcertificateprograms/businessesstechnologiesdivision/automotive/aptc/>) prepares students for starting or advancing their career in the automotive service industry as an engine, automatic trans/transaxle, manual trans/transaxle, and driveline repair technician.
- The Automotive Undercar Technician Certificate (AUTC) (<https://catalog.cincinnati.edu/archives/2024-2025/academicdivisionsanddegreeandcertificateprograms/businessesstechnologiesdivision/automotive/autc/>) prepares students for starting or advancing their career in the automotive